

HOW TO USE THE "BOSS" GOODY

SETUP

Apply the "Boss" stickers to the blank side of two of the Explorer markers in your game of Kero, matching the characters on each marker.

At the start of the game, the players agree whether to play with the "Boss" side or the "normal" side of their Explorer markers.

If you play with the "Boss" side, your clan has 7 Explorer markers, one of which - the Boss - has a "Boss" sticker showing.

RULE FOR USING THE BOSS MARKER

Each Boss may be used once per game: until its ability is activated, it is played with the "Boss" side up (i.e. with the yellow part visible). Once its ability has been activated, it is flipped onto its "normal" side, becoming a normal "Explorer" marker with no special ability.

Bosses are played like any of the game's other Explorers, but they have a special ability that can be activated when determining the majorities at the end of a round (after revealing a Claim card): once per game, in the event of a tie, you can use your Boss to break the tie and win the New Territory card on which it was placed. Simply inform your opponent of your decision to activate your Boss's ability while New Territories are being distributed. Then collect your New Territory, flip your Boss marker onto its "normal" side and put it back in your camp, along with all your other Explorers placed on the same New Territory. You will not be able to activate your Boss marker again during the game.

F.A.Q.

Can you place a Boss on a New Territory that is already occupied by another Boss?

Yes, you can. However, if both clans have the same number of Explorers on the New Territory (including the Bosses) at the end of the round, the clans will be tied again and neither clan will win the New Territory. If this happens, the New Territory is discarded, the Bosses are flipped onto their "normal" side and all Explorers are returned to their respective camps.

Can you use a Permanent Ability on a New Territory on which a Boss has been placed?

No, you are not allowed to use a Permanent Ability on a New Territory occupied by a Boss.
